GOOD PSYCHOLOGY

Some behavior experts have found that it can be easier to meet a challenge if you don't think about it too much. Needless worrying can actually make things harder.

Many college students have found school can be easier if they're less worried about getting a good job afterwards. Some know they'll have one as Marine Corps officers. HUSBAND ALERT: THE PERFECT ANNIVERSARY GIFT

If you have a wedding anniversary coming up soon and are in a quandary over what to give your wife, your problem can be solved by a diamond eternity ring.

A diamond eternity ring is a half or full circle of diamonds and for centuries has been the traditional gift a husband gives his wife on an anniversary. The circular form of the ring dates back to ancient Greece and conveys the sentiment, "My love will run out at the circle's end."

Diamonds too, have been the symbol of love since that time, when the Greeks named the gem, the hardest substance known to man, "adamas," meaning "unconquerable."

So surprise her with the gift that will tell her you'd marry her all over again if you could. There are many styles and prices available—ask for it by name: the diamond eternity ring.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Evergreens Are For Beauty And Protection

A row of lush evergreens is a thing of beauty. But much of their beauty is hidden beneath a very practical exterior. You see, a wall of evergreens planted along the street side of your home will act as a sound barrier in addition to providing privacy and protection from chilling winds.

Evergreens are big energy savers, too. Planted on the predominant windward side of the house, they serve as excellent windbreaks. They have been proven to reduce a home's heating bill by up to 40-percent.

The secret of evergreens' greater efficiency over masonry walls is that they let part of the wind through, thereby lifting the air current up and over the house. With a masonry wall a turbulence is formed between the wall and house which draws the wind down full-force against the house.

The Green Survival program of the American Association of Nurserymen teaches that evergreens are one of the essentials in any landscape plan. Over the years they'll pay for themselves in energy savings and noise reduction.

CANCER Answer line

American Cancer Society

A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to keep you informed about cancer.

A reader asks: "What are the most common cancers for black Americans?"

ANSWERline: The list includes cancers of the lung, breast, prostate, colon-rectum and cervix, which is the neck-like opening of the womb. For many of these major forms of cancer, the outlook for successful treatment is good if detected in an early stage. Therefore, it makes sense to learn cancer's warning signals and to plan an individual schedule of physical checkups including important cancer tests. Your local American Cancer Society Unit has further information about cancer safeguards. This information is available free of charge.

A high school student asks: "What happens because of radiation exposure?"

ANSWERline: The impact of radiation exposure depends on many factors including the parts of the body exposed and the vulnerability of the tissue. An unborn baby in a mother's womb, for example, is highly vulnerable. Radiation exposure can damage a cell's genetic apparatus so that it reproduces itself in an impaired form or it may kill the cell. Given in high doses with protection for normal cells, therapeutic radiation is used to kill cancer cells. Lesser radiation exposure-hazards may show up over a period of time as developmental abnormalities, genetic defects or even by the development of cancer. Just how radiation damages cells is a question still to be answered by research, but the results of hazardous radiation exposure are known.

A fashion model writes: "I have discovered that I tend to smoke when I am emotionally upset. Does this mean I'll never be able to quit? After all, life is full of emotional upsets!"

ANSWERline: If you light up usually when you're angry or depressed, you are using smoking as a tranquilizer. You've got to prove to yourself that smoking isn't helping you deal with problems effectively. In a tough situation take a deep breath to relax, call a friend and talk over your feelings. Once you've coped with stress a few times without smoking, you're on your way to quitting.

YOUR LIFE INSURANCE

Prepared by the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters, the national society of life insurance professionals who have earned the CLU designation by meeting high educational, ethical and experience requirements.

Q. I overheard someone talking about dividends on his insurance policy at a party I went to last night. I didn't know the person speaking, so didn't want to ask, but could you explain this to me?

A. Certainly. A life insurance policy dividend is part of the premium returned to you after the company pays for benefits and expenses and sets aside reserves for future benefit payments. Dividends are only paid out on what are called participating policies, usually after the policy has been in effect a few years. There's no guarantee that the company will always pay these dividends, and these policies often call for higher premium payments.

ENERGY. We can't afford to waste it.

VEPCO ANNOUNCES PLANS FOR SITE STUDIES

In 1968 peak demand on the Vepco system was 4.25 million kilowatts. In 1978 it was 7.8 millionkilowatts and current projections show the demand by the mid-1980's will be over 10 million kilowatts.

"The population and economy of the tri-state area served by Vepco is growing," Brown said. "Even with significant conservation and energy management efforts, new industry, new jobs and new homes are creating a growing demand for electric power.

"We must look to and build for the future or ultimately be unable to meet customers' needs."

ride-sharing arrangements such as carpools pose no insurance problems as long as they are not operated for profit.

The Institute does recommend, however, that drivers participating in carpools consider higher coverage limits on bodily injury liability. This coverage protects the driver against claims brought by others, including carpool passengers, should they be injured in an accident. Increased coverage is available at reasonable costs, the Institute said.
